GAMBLERS DESPERATE

Plot to Blow Up Jail in Which are Confined Im- portant Witnesses.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—A plot to blow up the West Side Prison and thus kill Jack Rose, "Bridie" Weber, Harry Vallon and Sam Schepps, principal witnesses against Becker, was revealed to the police by a letter received by Assistant Prison Keeper Levy Monday night.

The letter insists gamblers are behind the plot, and that men are working on a tunnel to put the dynamite beneath the prison.

Careful search by the police failed to reveal any such tunnel, but a special guard was posted and patrols kept out all night around the prison.

How essential it seemed to Mr. Whitman that he should personally protect Schepps from New York police interference appeared Monday night when it was learned that Detectives Al Thomas, the police officer who with Assistant Attorney Rubin, brought Schepps from Hot Springs, had received during the journey East several telegrams from Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty ordering him to bring the prisoner directly to police headquarters upon his arrival.

Thomas, who, though a police detective, is attached to the District Attorney's office, did not answer the telegrams until he had wired to Mr. Whitman, who was then in Manchester.

When the train bearing Mr. Whitman and the Schepps party arrived Monday five headquarters detectives boarded it and demanded Schepps as their prisoner.

"I will order the instant arrest of any officer who attempts to take Schepps to police headquarters," Mr. Whitman declared, "and you men can present by compliments to your Commissioner."

Mr. Whitman explained to the detectives that as District Attorney of the county he was thoroughly familiar with the evidence against Schepps as an alleged accomplice of the murderer, and told them that it was insufficient to arrest him on such a charge, this being the one the police have made against him.

"Schepps has come a voluntary witness into the State on a pledge from me that he be protected, and I intend to protect him," declared the District Attorney.

Schepps was arraigned and held on a technical charge of vagrancy. His fellow prisoners in the West Side Jail are Rose, "Bridie" Weber, and Harry Vallon, with whom he exchanged greetings in the prison Monday.

"I'm going to stick by you," yelled Schepps when he spied Rose behind a cell window across the court yard of the prison.

The indictments for police graft are not likely to be drawn until after the Rosenthal murder indictments are found.

Big Jack Selig, accused by Jack Rose of being the man who gathered the murderers for the killing of Rosenthal, was arrested in Providence, R. I., Monday. He is held on the charge of being an accessory, and District Attorney Whitman was notified of his arrest.

William Shapiro, driver of the "murder car," was Monday given his last day of grace to tell a truthful story to the District Attorney, and face indictment it was learned Monday night.

Commissioner Waldo Monday named 35 Police Lieutenants to quarters and interviewed each. It is said on good authority that the Commissioner is contemplating a "shake up" among Lieutenants in charge of certain districts where gambling and disorderly resorts have not been suppressed.

Representatives of the District Attorney's office Monday discovered more money deposited to the credit of Becker. This brings the total deposits of Becker up to $83,000. Fourteen bankers have been summoned to appear before the grand jury today in connection with these deposits.

How to Start a Rifle Club

A very interesting 16 page illustrated booklet has just been issued by the J. STEVENS ARMS & TOOL CO., Chicopee Falls, Mass., entitled "HOW TO START A RIFLE CLUB." DR. M. A. SCOVELL DEAD

Noted Scientist Who Has Been in Charge of Kentucky Experiment Station for Years Laid to Rest at Lexington Last Sunday

Every Sort of Commercial Activity in that City Suspended for Three Minutes
During Funeral Services

All that was mortal of the late Dr. Melville A. Scovell, scientist, educator and public benefactor, was laid tenderly to rest Sunday afternoon in the Lexington Cemetery, while hundreds of citizens and friends of the deceased gathered at the grave, bowed their heads in sorrow over the loss that they personally and the community, and State has sustained in the loss of this good and great man.

The funeral services, which took place at the family residence on the Nicholasville road, and which were conducted by the Rev. J. M. Melear, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church, were made all the more impressive by the fact that just as the minister was uttering the closing words of his tribute to the dead, every street and interurban car in the city, by order of the traction officials, and every vehicle, by the request of the Mayor, stood still for three minutes, and as if in unison with the solemnity of the occasion, the entire city for the time being seemed in mourning.

Lying in state in the southwest corner room of the now sorrow-laden home on the Nicholasville pike, and surrounded by great banks of flowers and ferns, arranged in the most tasteful manner, the calm face of the departed scientist, as natural in appearance as it was when flushed with life, was looked upon by hundreds of friends and relatives, who called to pay the last tribute to him, whose work unfinished as it was, was recognized and appreciated throughout the land.

Dr. Melear in conducting the funeral service read the entire ninth Psalm, while the two hundred or more friends of the departed, who gathered at the home to pay the last tribute, sat with bowed heads, deeply touched by the sympathetic words of the officiating minister.

The ceremonies were simple, consisting of songs, prayers and the reading of the scriptures, and by 4 o'clock the funeral procession, more than three blocks in length began to move toward the Lexington Cemetery, where the burial took place.

The plan of having every wheel in the city stop from 3 o'clock until three minutes past 3 o'clock while Dr. Melear read the Psalm was adhered to fully. Every street car stopped exactly at 3 o'clock, and the baseball game which was in progress was held up for three minutes. Many carriages and automobiles remained where they happened to be at the hour of 3 and every activity in the city took on the aspect of mourning.

The body was lowered into the grave about 4:30 o'clock and as the earth was rolled over the casket the last chapter in the earthly career of one of Lexington's best and noblest citizens was closed.

BULL MOOSE AND THE DEMOCRATS

Sunday's Cincinnati Enquirer quoted Col. R. T. Ford, of Middleboro, who is a staunch Democrat, and at one time the Democratic nominee for State Treasurer as follows "It would take but little work to change quite a number of Seavey or Smith people to vote for the stronger of the two." In other words Seavey is in bed with the Democratic party and the Democratic party is in bed with Seavey, and as predicted by Caleb Powers in the statement he issued some days ago, this Democratic nominee will be off the track before the November election, and the Democratic party will be voting the Bull Moose ticket in the Congressional race with a vengeance. They will have a double object in view. One will be to defeat Caleb Powers, who has fought the battles of the Republican party for years, and who they had rather defeat than any man in public life today. Their other object will be to boost the Bull Moose party as much as possible in the hope of permanently destroying the Republican party in the district. Then why shouldn't they vote for Seavey. When has he ever raised his voice against the Democrats in the 11th district? When has he ever appeared on the stump in the 11th district fighting the battles of the Republican party? When has he ever raised his voice in a public speech in the 11th district against the outrages of the Democratic party for the past fifteen years? Caleb Powers is the friend of the Republican party and the true and tried enemy of the Democratic party. We know Caleb Powers and his record. He has fought the battles of the Republican party in the district for the past twenty-five years. The Democrats are against him, and not without a cause. They are for Seavey and not without a cause. On what side should every true Republican be found?—A Republican.

D. A. JOHNSON

Found Dead in His Room
at Portsmouth, Ohio
Last Monday

A Well Known Citizen of this City and His Remains sent Here for Burial

D. A. Johnson, a well known citizen of this city was found dead in his room at Portsmouth, Ohio last Monday. It is not definitely known the cause of his death as it was difficult to learn the details, but it is supposed that it was caused by heart failure.

Mr. Johnson left here last spring and was not sure at the time where he would locate. He was a member of the Masonic order and paid up his dues here before going away, saying at the time that he was going away and had better pay up, that he did not know where he would be, and it was by this receipt that he was identified. Relatives here were notified and his remains were shipped here for burial, arriving Thursday morning. His funeral was conducted by the masons, the Rev. Gibbs, pastor of the M. E. Church, south, officiating as minister, at his home on High Street, now occupied by W. R. Barber, and his burial was at the Barbourville Cemetery Thursday afternoon.

Before coming to this city several years ago Mr. Johnson was a citizen of Morristown, Tenn., but he has lived in this city for some time until a few months ago when his wife died. Since that time he has not been here except for a short period of time.

He was 63 years old at the time of his death and leaves a large number of children. Those attending the funeral from other cities were the following: Mrs. R. M. Rankin, his daughter, and her son Thomas, also daughters Misses Lalla and Gladys, of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Young, and Miss Mayme Johnson of Knoxville, the latter also his daughters, Rev. and Mrs. Jas. P. Faulkner, another daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Pitman and Miss Olive Johnson of Pineville, Mrs. Pitman and Miss Olive also his daughters, his son Edward L. Johnson, of Middleboro, Mrs. Craig, his sister, and her two sons Dennis and Oney, of Morristown, Tenn., Mrs. Annie Wallace, of Atlanta, Ga., and his sister Miss Mollie Johnson, of Knoxville, Tenn. He leaves another daughter Mrs. W. R. Barber of this city.

Methodist Episcopal Conference.

The Methodist Episcopal Annual Conference will convene in this city Monday September 3rd and last six days. Great preparations are being made to entertain the representatives and delegates. Already there have been voluntarily offered entertainment for more than two thirds of those who will attend. Programs are being printed this week which will be distributed as soon as finished.

Navel Orange From Brazil.
The navel orange was first discovered in Bahia, Brazil, whence it was carried to Australia, but there the slips did not thrive. The botanical department at Washington, D. C., sent for some slips, and on receiving them sent them to an orange grower of Los Angeles. In due time the trees grew and produced fruit, and this was named the Washington navel orange in compliment to the department at the capital.

Humorist's Talk on Grammar.
George Ade, at a dinner in Chicago, delivered an amusing little address on grammar. "Don't," he began, "don't say, 'Mamie and me have been to church' when you mean 'Mamie and I have been to church.' Why, though, lie about it at all? Don't use the word 'got' too much. It is inelegant. 'I have got a million' is not nearly so refined as 'I have a million.' From whom you got it is, after all, nobody's affair but your own."

Fish Problem in Kentucky

FRANKFORT, KY., Aug. 20.—The problem of meeting all requirements of the Federal Department in order to secure the stocking of Kentucky streams with fish this fall has many angles to it, and the Fish and Game Commission is paying especial attention to this phase of the work in order to present entirely satisfactory conditions when the request for fish is made next month.

One of the requirements is to prevent the further pollution of rivers by distilleries. It is contended that the slops, containing tons of small particles that sink to the bottom, pour into streams and kill thousands of fish annually. These fermenting particles are eaten by fish and set up irritation in their stomachs or are caught in the gills and inflame them. This, they declare, has been destructive of game fish by the wholesale, and the department is determined to put a stop to it.

Many distilleries already are operating redriers, by which the liquid is squeezed out of the corn refuse and then the residue is dried and made into blocks, which compose excellent feed and is a profitable by-product.

While steps are being taken to put the new laws into effect, their operation is being watched, and it is probable that some amendments will be offered to the next General Assembly, one of which may be modification of the provision against seining.

It is probable that seines with five-inch meshes will be allowed, as this will permit the small fry to escape, and hold two and three-pounders. No harm will come of this, as the purpose of the law is to prevent the extermination of game.

Remington-U M C Won Out

Members of the American team, returning from the First International Pan-American Rifle and Revolver Tournament, held at Buenos Aires, Argentina report a growing friendliness between the South American countries, and the United States.

The attitude of the citizens toward the Americans, in every city visited, was not at all suggestive of the anti-Yankee feeling of which news dispatches have told, but there seemed everywhere to be the greatest evidence of good will, both in social and business relations. A notable feature of the tournament was the fact that every revolver and pistol competition was won with Remington-UMC, American-made ammunition.

Next Tuesday will be the opening day at the Laurel County Fair which will continue four days. A large crowd from this city is expected to attend. A feature of the Laurel County Fair is the annual Fair dances held the night of the second and fourth days which are always attended by large crowds, young people coming from all parts of the State to attend these dances. Barbourville will be well represented there this year as several of the young folks are making preparations to be there on these occasions.

Valueable Collection of Stamps. A valuable collection of postage stamps belonging to a Budapest architect, and estimated to be worth $200,000, was recently purchased by a Hungarian firm of dealers. There were seventeen volumes in the collection, some of the stamps being worth as much as $1,500 apiece.

Home. A home! It is the bright, beseid, adorable phantom that sits highest on the sunny horizon that girdeth life. —Like Marvel's "Roveries of a Bachelor."

FARM BOYS' ENCAMPMENT

One Representative From Each County Will Be Included—Selection by Competitive Examination.

Each succeeding year brings new features to the Kentucky State Fair, some in point of instruction, others in point of amusement. This year the newest, and one of the best features ever planned by the fair management, is the holding of a Farm Boys' Encampment during the week of the fair. It is planned to have one boy from each of the 120 counties in the state in the encampment. This will give one representative boy from each county a chance to see and to study the best that is possible in the way of live stock, farm products, improved methods, improved machinery, and in fact every appliance and tool in use, on an up-to-date farm.

The knowledge and educational benefit derived from this camp of instruction will be spread broadcast throughout the entire state. The selection of the boys will be made on a competitive examination of essays by a committee composed of the county school superintendent, a member of the state board of agriculture and a member of the faculty of the Agricultural college. The applicant must be between the age of 15 and 18 years, and must reside and work on the farm. The essay to be submitted by them is to consist of not less than 400 and not more than 600 words, upon the subject of "Our Home Farm." The essay must be in the hands of the committee before the 20th of August. The applicant whose essay receives the highest standing will be entitled to a free trip to the Kentucky State Fair from each county.

In addition to free transportation, lodgings and meals at the fair grounds will be furnished. The boys will be met at the railway station in Louisville by competent guides, who will take them to the fair grounds, at which place they will be under the immediate supervision of Prof. T. R. Bryant, of the Agricultural college.

POLE STAR REALLY DOUBLE

Furthermore, Spectroscope Shows Brighter of Its Orbs Actually Is Composed of Three.

The pole star, which is the one star in the heavens which always seems to keep its place, can be seen when observed through a powerful telescope to be really two stars. One, known as the "second magnitude," is fairly bright, and the other close to it is of the ninth magnitude, and is not so clearly seen. The brighter of the two is really three stars revolving round one another or rather round their common center of gravity, like three children playing "ring a ring o' roses."

This secret is revealed by what is perhaps the most astonishing of all scientific instruments, the spectroscopic. It not only tells what the stars are made of, but whether they are moving toward us or away from us.

When a person stands facing the star, he is always facing north. The reason that it does not appear to move as the others do is because it is nearly in line with the axis of the earth. Its distance from us is enormous.

This can be judged from the fact that although the earth in its journey round the sun is today about 190,000,000 miles from where it was six months ago, that makes no appreciable difference to its distance from the pole star. It must therefore be many times 190,000,000 miles away.—London Sphere.

WAGONS FOR BLIND TIGERS

That is What Tommy Supposed the Closed Cages in the Circus Parade Were.

Tommy lives in a "dry" county, and during the last two years has heard much of "blind tigers." He went to Indianapolis to attend a circus recently and was much interested in the parade. Immediately following a cage in which were some royal Bengal tigers, there were two or three wagons closed so the interior could not be seen.

"Papa," inquired Tommy, "are those wagons where they keep the blind tigers?"

Tommy's mother is a model housekeeper, and Tommy has been taught that every piece of household furniture has a place, and should be kept in its place. After the evening performance, the roustabouts began tearing away the seats before the crowd had much more than started to leave the tent.

"Goodness, mamma," said Tommy, "look how those men are arranging the chairs."

TRICKS OF ENGLISH TAILORS

There are still London tailors who will clothe you at a contract price. One enterprising trader undertakes to clothe—and clothe you well, he says—for 25 cents a week, while another philanthropist offers to let you have the first suit for nothing if you will order another one and pay for it when you receive the first.

And there are benevolent clothiers who will give you a hat if you buy a pair of trousers, or will throw in a waistcoat with an overcoat.

ARTISTS AND CRITICS.

In a recent interview Mme Rider Kelsey, the distinguished American soprano, made the following remark: "There is entirely too much coddling of mediocrity in this country. We will never raise our standard until we learn to call black black whether it be in performer or creator. Every artist should—and every true artist does—welcome genuine criticism."

EXACTLY.

"What is meant by the expression 'Fools rush in where angels fear to tread'?" she asked with a half smile.

"And you are the wayfarer?" Blake returned because he could think of nothing else for the moment.

"I supposed the hunting season did not begin until later." Malvina smiled half wistfully.

"It does not. But fishing suits me almost as well, and since the Comet needs me in the fall—"

"And you need your own camp now," Malvina interrupted. "It is time for me to depart."

"Not at all—I intend to stay at a boarding place nearby—where I shall not have to bother even with my own meager fare."

But Malvina would not remain; she felt that she must go, and since Blake had insisted that he preferred to stay at the boarding place he must needs go whether or not he liked.

Thus, the two found themselves at the table of the mountain boarding house and it was in that once despised parlor that—not a month later—Malvina promised to marry James Blake, editor.

HER ADDRESS.

Husband of Militant Suffragette (to his secretary)—Take this note around to my wife, please.

Secretary—Certainly, sir. At what—er—jail is she stopping?—Harper's Bazaar.

Malvina Moves

Malvina sighed and arose from her typewriter. "I might have known that inspiration for love stories would flee from mountain boarding houses," she told herself as she swept a hand across her wide, intelligent eyes.

From the room below which was called parlor came the refrain of "Oh, You Beautiful Dodd;" then, "Every Little Movement." The tone from the piano itself was like the jangle of many discordant tins, but the music.

Malvina stopped her ears, then, with quick movements slipped into her white jersey and out into the cool mountain air. Her nerves were in dire need of calm and quiet.

She walked on with lightened heart. The pungent odor of balsam and the cool breezes from the lake soothed her.

She approached a small camp with eager steps. How had this jewel in the forest escaped her before?

"Young girls?"

"Of course."

"Well, how were they dressed?"

"You know, it was the usual way—hair puffed out, short skirts, low necks. I don't object to all of that. You don't want them to dress like back numbers. But you should have seen their shoes and stockings."

"Don't I know? You needn't tell me about the astonishing lack of sense that some women display."

"And men, too."

"Oh, well, men, too, I suppose. But you started the conversation about girls."

"Yes, I was going to tell you. Those three girls were dressed as thin as could be. Not one of them had on a wrap, and you know how cold and damp it's been today. But that wasn't the worst. Two had on velvet shoes and the other girl had on satin ones that were all run down at the heels and the satin torn. All of the three had on such short skirts that you could see their thin, flimsy silk stockings. In fact, I thought one had on black and white stockings till I noticed that the white spots were places where the stitches had given out."

"Well, what about all that?"

"I walked back of them to the corner of the next street. They crossed the muddy, dirty pavement, and I know they must have got their feet wet. I watched them for a few minutes and saw them go into a cheap ice cream parlor, and then—"

"And then what?"

"Well, I've been thinking. How can such girls keep house and have homes that give a man a chance to make something of himself?"

"They can't."

"Then what's going to become of us Americans?"

"Ask the university professors. I'm only a doctor."

"Oh, I know what the university professors say. They tell you that our hope lies in the immigrants, the people from the country, and all that. But, ten to one, these were daughters of immigrants or country girls themselves."

Outside at the edge of the forest, a big man swung along with an old handbag in one hand and his fishing paraphernalia in the other.

When he drew near an indefinable something stirred within him. Never before, during the many summers he had spent in the mountains, had his camp seemed so desolate.

Blake quickened his pace and sprang up to the veranda. He stopped before he had entered, held by the glimmer of pink at the windows.

Instinctively Blake removed his soft hat before going inside. He caught a quick breath and stood as if suddenly lost to his surroundings.

By all the laws of propriety Blake should have turned and left his own camp. But he could not move with the sight of Malvina pictured before him. She was in a sound sleep and her cheeks were flushed. Her glorious hair was a mass of spun copper that trailed over the cushion.

The power of his eyes disturbed her and she stirred. Blake, spellbound, watched the heavy lashes flutter, then rise slowly up to reveal her eyes.

Blake then came to his senses and turned toward the door. He waited outside on the veranda until she should come. He felt that she would follow immediately.

Malvina did. "I suppose you are the hunter who invited wayfarers into your camp?" she asked with a half smile.

"And you are the wayfarer?" Blake returned because he could think of nothing else for the moment.

"I supposed the hunting season did not begin until later." Malvina smiled half wistfully.

"It does not. But fishing suits me almost as well, and since the Comet needs me in the fall—"

"And you need your own camp now," Malvina interrupted. "It is time for me to depart."

"Not at all—I intend to stay at a boarding place nearby—where I shall not have to bother even with my own meager fare."

But Malvina would not remain; she felt that she must go, and since Blake had insisted that he preferred to stay at the boarding place he must needs go whether or not he liked.

Thus, the two found themselves at the table of the mountain boarding house and it was in that once despised parlor that—not a month later—Malvina promised to marry James Blake, editor.

Young America.

"You may be president some day, my boy," said the patronizing old gentleman.

"Great Scott!" replied the sadly flippant youth; "you're not trying to pick dark horses that far ahead, are you?"

MANY USES FOR PEROXIDE

It Is a Powerful Bleaching Agent and Also Is Valuable as an Antiseptic.

One of the most powerful bleaching agents employed in various trades is peroxide of hydrogen, also known as hydrogen dioxide and oxygenated water. The natural color in ostrich plumes is removed by it and it will also bleach a great number of other things, such as bones, ivory, silver, wood, silk, cotton and hair. It can be used to restore the color to old oil paintings which have become darkened by age. Peroxide is a valuable antiseptic and will also destroy objectionable microorganisms in water. It can even be used to cure indigestion, but for this purpose, as well as for other medicinal uses, it must be diluted. A drop of peroxide is strong enough to raise a white blister on the skin. Minute quantities of peroxide of hydrogen are found in the air, in rain water and in snow, and it is sometimes found in the juices of certain plants. The liquid is produced on a large scale by the action of acids on peroxide of sodium. The solution may be concentrated by allowing the water to freeze out, by passing dry air through it or by evaporation in a vacuum over sulphuric acid.—San Francisco Chronicle.

LONDON AS A NERVE CURE

American Actress Says Its Cheerfulness and Unruffled Calm Are Soothing to Soul.

Laura Nelson Hall, an American actress, now playing in London in "The Easiest Way," is telling why she likes London, which she finds "so restful after New York city."

"I love London," she says, "because of its immensity, its endless inspiration, and I think chiefly because it is the most restful place I've ever struck. People who don't know American cities talk of the roar of London and its nerve-destroying riot. I smile—for I come from New York, London! Why, it's a nerve cure and a soother of the soul that ought to be recommended by every nerve specialist who knows his job. I've been here three months and I haven't seen a dog fight. This is no imputation of the courage of the British dog; it is the most eloquent tribute to the serene influence of your placid city. All your dogs look cheerful, they reflect the unruffled calm of their owners, and together they form living testimony to those sedative surroundings which have made so wonderful a change in my nervous system since I struck this favored land of beauty and quietude."

"They can't come to call after that?" asked Evelyn.

"Is that a joke?" inquired Anne. "You cannot laugh me into liking them. There is a horrid old creature in the apartment below ours who knocks on the ceiling with a broom handle every time I run our sewing machine. We are disgusted with the building and mean to move as soon as our lease expires."

"You do not need to wait, because I'll take the lease off your hands as soon as you like. I am going to go to housekeeping with another girl before long and your apartment would suit us exactly. When you get ready to move let me know."

A few weeks later Evelyn received a note from Anne saying that she and her mother were about to take another apartment, so Evelyn called to see about transferring the lease. During the interval she learned Anne's mother had suffered a fall and was confined to her couch with a dislocated hip. During Evelyn's call so many persons dropped in that she had to remain
